Gilleasbuig Uchd-Amhairc Nan Reul:

Mother Elf

Father Human

Mother died when he was young, due to grievance his father was spiraling down and could not handle his liquor.

To avoid his father spend a lot of times outdoor bonding with animals,

Whenever his father was drunk he would sneak in and out of the house to ensure not to unleash his fathers anger. During those evenings his father was drinking he was spotted often on the roof watching the stars.

By other perceived as with his head in the clouds, not able to concentrate on learning from books.

After an incident he was taken away by grandparents of mothers side who were fletchers. Here he gained the skill to use the bow.

Eventhough his grandparents were well respected and he was known in the community he did not really feel like fitting in.

When coming of age he went to explore the world and his human heritage,

Because of money issues he went to work for a noble house.

With his skills of stealth and perception he quickly became a respected agent.

When the old lord died he decided to take leave from the service of the house and went to explore the outdoors again.
